Essential Copyright Compliance for Academic Staff

LICENCES
1. The University subscribes to the following licences:
   a. Copyright Licensing Agency Higher Education Licence, allows academics to make available published print and digital material to students subject to certain conditions.
   b. Education Recording Agency Licence, allows academics to make use of off-air recordings, through a service called Box of Broadcasts.
   c. Newspaper Licensing Agency licence permits academics to distribute press cuttings to students, subject to conditions.
   d. Ordnance Survey Licence allows academics to make available maps to students under certain conditions.

DIGITISED BOOK CHAPTERS AND JOURNAL ARTICLES
2. LLS can scan book chapters and journal articles for you to use in your teaching. Requests can be submitted to the LLS Digitisation Team using the DMU Resource List system. More information is available on DMU Resource List from our library guide at https://library.dmu.ac.uk/resourcelistsmain.
3. For those articles not available from the University Library’s collections, you can search for openaccess material on online browsers. More information on how to do this is available from the copyright guide (look under “A General Guide to Copyright” – “Copyright and the Internet”).
4. Where articles are not available in open access and we do not hold the items in the Library’s collections, you can still submit a request for scanning and we will try to order a copyright fee paid scan from the British Library, which can be added to your DMU Resource List.

USING IMAGES AND YOUTUBE VIDEOS IN YOUR TEACHING MATERIAL
5. Images and YouTube videos used within teaching and online materials should either be covered by a Creative Commons licence allowing re-use of the image/video or permission must be sought from the rights holder. You can search for Creative Commons images/videos using a Creative Commons search site at https://oldsearch.creativecommons.org/ as well as other sites, such as Unsplash. More information is available on the copyright guide (look under “Frequently Asked Questions”).

UK LAW – COPYRIGHT, DESIGNS AND PATENTS ACT
6. If you are unable to use any of the options above, then you may want to consider using the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act exceptions. Please refer to the copyright guide.
